

Spring 2012

Fit Kids Rock: The Campaign against Childhood Obesity in a Valparaiso Elementary School

Samuel Borden

Nathalie Martinez

Lauren Rubio

Ryan Brule

Follow this and additional works at: <http://scholar.valpo.edu/cus>

 Part of the Communication Commons

Recommended Citation

Borden, Samuel; Martinez, Nathalie; Rubio, Lauren; and Brule, Ryan, "Fit Kids Rock: The Campaign against Childhood Obesity in a Valparaiso Elementary School" (2012). Celebration of Undergraduate Scholarship. Paper 99.
<http://scholar.valpo.edu/cus/99>

This Poster Presentation is brought to you for free and open access by the Office of Sponsored and Undergraduate Research at ValpoScholar. It has been accepted for inclusion in Celebration of Undergraduate Scholarship by an authorized administrator of ValpoScholar. For more information, please contact a ValpoScholar staff member at scholar@valpo.edu.

Fit Kids Rock: The Campaign against Childhood Obesity in a Valparaiso Elementary School

Samuel Borden, Nathalie Martinez, Lauren Rubio, Ryan Brule

Departmental Affiliation: Communication
College of Arts and Sciences

The Bateman Team's topic was childhood obesity, a well-known, yet hidden issue. Before beginning the campaign, it was necessary to research the target audiences and the most effective ways to reach them. The Bateman Team chose to address elementary school third graders (about 70 students) and their faculty. Research showed that the best ways to communicate with the 8-9 year olds was through interactive activities and guidance. As a team, we coordinated with the school's administration to implement the plan for a set time during the school day. The third graders were separated into two sections (35 students each) to attend our event. The elementary students proceeded to seven stations which engaged their knowledge on obesity, making healthy choices, and learning about the importance of exercise. Based on our evaluation of the children's reactions to the stations, their enthusiasm, and overall engagement, we concluded that they did enjoy the events and left with a better understanding of childhood obesity. The Bateman Team assessed that 90 percent of the students will make healthier choices and implement the knowledge provided to them.

Information about the Authors:

Samuel Borden is a public relations, communications major. He is currently a member of the Public Relations Society of America where he is the co-chair of the SPARK Agency, standards chair, and the webmaster. Nathalie Martinez is a communications major with a public relations concentration. Currently, she is a public relations director of PRSSA. Also, she is taking a class about global campaigns. Ryan Brule is pursuing a bachelor degree in health sciences and systems. Ryan has been involved with the PRSSA chapter at Valparaiso University in campaigns such as "The Bateman Campaign," "Downtown Connection," and has attended several professional conferences. Lauren Rubio is a senior communication major with a concentration in public relations. She is a member of PRSSA and part of the Bateman Campaign's "Team Recess." She currently interns at Porter County Family Counseling Center and will graduate in May, 2012.

Faculty Sponsor: Dr. Bonita Neff

Student Contact: ryan.brule@valpo.edu