EDITORIAL.

The next number of the Herald will be a "Commercial Special. It will contain, besides the Commercial matter, containing Alumni Letters, Alumni notes,
Locals, Poems, Toasts, Etc., etc., etc.; also Pres.
Brown's Own Story"—2nd Article, and much more very interesting matter.

It will be a sixteen page paper, with a circulation of
Two Thousand.

A NEW SLATE.

The U. S. Postal

Laws Demand that no one shall be carried on the subscription list, who has been in arrears for more than three months; hence the Herald must cease to be a visitor in many homes, or until such time as the subscription is paid.

We Are Indeed Sorry

for everyone whose paper is dropped with this issue, subscribed with the promise to send in subscription in a short time.

We cannot understand why so many of our subscribers are so neglectful.

But Blow Ye Winds! Carry the word to the four quarters of the globe, for the Editor has repented in sack cloth and ashes, and has sworn by all the gods from Billikin to Jove, that henceforth no man gets the University Herald until he pays his dollar.

Of course we are disappointed that this paper could not come out just as planned. We are minus "Personal Notes" and a part of the "Hill News" promised.

The Professor's Love Story will be repeated by Prof.
Reddie and his students, Friday Night, Feb. 4th. Of course it will be a success; Prof. Reddie's plays are never anything else.

Twenty-four hours after we made the last sitting we had the finished picture of the Soph. Medics. in the hands of the printer—a saving of at least two weeks from the usual order of things. If this kind of service means anything to you we want to see you when you are in the market for pictures.

The majority of the editors are giving us good matter; but their are a few who had better reread their call.

Many a man in his imaginations has seen "P. G."
written across the Heavens and mistaken the vision to mean "Preach the Gospel" when it was only a simple warning to "Pick the Geese."

A few of the hill editors should read their call over again and see if they haven't misinterpreted it.

Remember when you send in items, that while you and two or three may enjoy them, yet they are possibly a bore to 2,000 readers, where they interest one.

For instance, here's a sample of a bright one:

"Who goes to see Susan? John!"

Say, isn't that a bright one for a University Grad?

Who cares for such dope? No one, unless its John and Susan, and its dollars to doughnuts they don't care about it being told.

Some of our editors persist in sending us the minutes of their society or class meetings.

If your society did something of importance, and of interest to the student body as a whole, or is going to do anything of such calibre, tell us. Send it along! We want it! We'll print it. But in the name of the Continental Congress (at least) write your minutes in the secretary's book. Who cares whether you met in Room
E or D? Who cares whether John Johnson, or Tom Tompson, or Peter Paterson, or Hans Hanson, made a motion and it was carried that we adjourn?

Rot!

Tell us the Drum beat and we all went home. Tell us the baby was born and his little name was Anthony!

Tell us—Oh tell us most anything—but keep the minutes in the Secretary's book.—"Maybe you weren't cut out for a Boman, or a Lembke, a Bavis, or a Martinelli. Maybe a Stineman, a Shield, or a Bjornson, isn't born under any old star.

Maybe you were cut out for a R. R. President, instead of a literary career. "There's lots of fun and little mun, in being literary," and perhaps you've got the whole bunch "skun" a mile in a dozen lines—maybe you—well, the chances are you've got as much in your noodle as any man on the hill; but the chances are strongly in favor of your not being a literary genius.

Valparaiso School of Piano Tuning

Six Reasons Why You Should Take Up Tuning With Us

Our school is the only one in the WEST where enough time is given to get tuning with any degree of accuracy.

The success of our graduates is the best possible recommendation that can be given for the high grade of work we do.

We use in teaching, many different styles of actions and all the different kinds of pianos made,—namely, the square, the upright and the grand.

The time and pains we take to make each and every student a successful tuner.

You can keep up your University work and still take tuning. Our tuition is less than at any other school.

QUIPS, QUIRKS CONUNDRUMS.

(Of all our exchanges none have such splendid quality of wit and humor as has the Moderator Topics of Lansing, Mich. We give here four clippings from that paper.—Ed.)

Whole Truth.

Witness—I saw a man with one eye named Wilkins.
Lawyer—What was the name of the other eye?

His Principal Feature.

Scott.—“See that man who just went by? He landed in this city with bare feet and now he’s got a million.”

Mott.—“Great Jupiter! That beats the centipede to a frazzle.”

A love smitten youth who was studying the approved methods of proposal, asked one of his bachelor friends if he thought that a young man should propose to a girl on his knees.

“If he doesn’t,” replied his friend, “the girl should get off.”

His Deduction.

A Baltimore school teacher had encountered such a degree of ignorance on the part of one of her boys in relation to the recorded acts of the Father of his Country that she grew sarcastic.

“I wonder,” she began, “if you could tell me whether George Washington was a sailor or a soldier?”

The boy grinned. “He was a soldier, all right,” he said.

“How do you know?” the teacher challenged.

“Because I saw a picture of him crossing the Delaware. Any sailor would know enough not to stand up in a boat.”—From Shipping Illustrated.

THAT OLD RECOLLECTION.

That Old Recollection! it walks in my footsteps,
It follows me on through the fields of my dreams,
It flashes its colors in all of life’s pictures—
THE PAST RESURRECTED! how grand it all seems!

That Old Recollection! the ever new story,
The same dear old tale of a lover’s first joy,
It takes me, kind friend, to the days of air castles—
LIFE’S DEAREST MEMORY! the love of a boy.

That Old Recollection! what matters it, comrade?
Its treasures are lost ’mid the dreams of the past,
Its roses are wilted, my summer is dying—
THE DREAM OF MY SPRINGTIME! it clings to the last.

That Old Recollection! let me dream if I will, Dear,
My eyes are now blinded, my footsteps are slow,
Please pardon a tear as I muse in the darkness—
THE TWILIGHT REFLECTIONS of long, long ago.

ALUNNI NEWS NOTES.

"I herewith inclose you a draft for $1.00 to pay for my subscription. You might consider yourself lucky in getting this money from me. I never pay any of my old debts at all, and never pay my new ones until they get old.

I have an office at this place and am doing pretty well, considering the fact that I am a Beginner and a Bachelor.

With hopes that the Lawyers win the Ball Pennant, and with good wishes to Grandpa, Bowman, and all of the rest of the world, I am, Fred A. Meyers, LL.B., '09, Vandalia, Ill."

"We like the Herald very much. It is like receiving a letter from home. I think some of being at the University during the coming year. My work here is pleasant and I believe the people generally believe it to be successful." S. H. Welty, Supt. of Schools, Wolf Lake, Ind.

"Enclosed please find the required tax for the 'Herald' for one year. If possible, we would like to begin with the September number, if you can dig them up, at this late date.

Oklahoma City is wonderful, a miniature Chicago, on these great open plains. We are delighted with the city. Quite a number of old Valpoites are here. But where are they not? Among them is the Rev. J. H. O. Smith, Pastor of the First Christian Church in this city.

Mr. Crego is with the Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., and is meeting with excellent success.

As indicated by this letter head and the enclosed circular, his better half is not idle. There are no idle people in Oklahoma City, however. Mrs. Ida Crego, Lock Box 1002, Oklahoma City, Okla.

"Enclosed find one dollar for the Herald. I enjoy every copy and look forward to its coming with pleasure, Elizabeth Knox, Crown Point, Ind.

"I am always glad to receive the 'Herald' as it is about the only means that I have of keeping in touch with old classmates.

Everything is moving along very nicely here in our Institution and we are enjoying the best of success this year." Eston Smith, Pres. Lewisville Academy, Lewisville, Tex.

"Enclosed find $1.00, being for one years subscription to the Herald, commencing with the first issue in Sept. 1909 to Sept., 1910. Now don't forget to send me the back numbers.

"Enclosed find $1.00 for Herald. It is a great paper now. Keep it up!

I am back in Panama again. As soon as cold weather commenced I left for the Tropics, where you never need a coat. I am back in my old place in the accounting department of the shop office here, at $125 per month and quarters. The machine shops here employ over 1900 men.

I found quite a change during the year I was away. Over 35,000,000 yards were taken out last year, and at this rate the excavation will be finished in about two and a half years. Great progress is being made on the Locks and Dams, over 2,000 yards of concrete being laid in the Gatun Locks in a single day, recently.

The last year was very wet, over 34 inches of rain falling at Cristobal in the month of November alone.

I met a Mr. Lindberg here recently who graduated from the Valpo Medical Department. Regards to Faculty and Students. Merle H. Carr, Special Prof., '09, Gorzonia, Canal Zone.

"Enclosed find my subscription to the Herald.

You are certainly getting out a fine paper. The poems of Barrett, alone, are worth the price of the paper. I, too, am in the newspaper business and like it, except from a financial standpoint. Henry B. Teigan, A.B., '09, Des Lacs, N. D.

The other day my little brother bundled the Herald up and sent them to me from home and now I am sending you the subscription. I am now far from Valparaiso, but it does me good to hear of that place and I shall never be too busy to read the Herald.

In one of the papers I received I read about some of my old chums, and am glad to hear from them.

I do not suppose they have any of the Phon. Students now that studied Phon. last year, when my brother and I were at Valparaiso. Does Mr. and Mrs. Corboy teach Phon. and Miss Reichenburg teach Typewriting this year. If you see them give them my regards.

My school runs until the last of May, then I am coming back to Indiana to spend the summer.

President Brown's Own Story

Early Days of the School

Second Article will Appear in Next Number of the Herald

"I HAVE LIVED A HUNDRED YEARS."

Such was the statement made by H. B. Brown to the Herald editor, during last summer's vacation, in discussing a proposed Alumni meet here on the fortieth anniversary of the foundation of the school.

The conversation then turned on the early history of the school and it was suggested to Pres. Brown, that a story so interesting as that ought not to be longer a secret, and upon the earnest request of the editor, Pres. Brown promised to give the whole story to the Herald.

In this article we are giving the history up to the end of the first year.

Previous to coming to Valparaiso Mr. Brown was a teacher in The North Western Ohio Normal School. 'Twas there that one, Ira Hoops, a student, first called his attention to Valparaiso, and a year later this same Ira Hoops again called his attention to the college, and more to please Hoops than because of any great interest that he himself had taken, up to date, a visit was made to Valparaiso.

room off the north of it, were put in order and with what is now known as Elocution Hall, two-thirds its present size, and pew seated, furnished all the room at that time needed.

What is now known as Crescent Hall was a little later fitted up for a Commercial Department.

The Boarding and Rooming department was in the charge of B. F. Perrine, now of Wheeler. The department consisted of what is now the East Wing of the old college building; the boarding department occupied the basement; the dining room, occupying what is now room 9, and the rest of the basement being used for the kitchen. The second and third floors, where today we have the offices and the Art rooms were then divided into fifteen student rooms. The matron of the boarding department was a Mrs. Hutchison. Tuition was $7.00 for ten weeks. Board and room was $2.60 per week.

Thus from the very first reduction of expenses was held of prime importance.

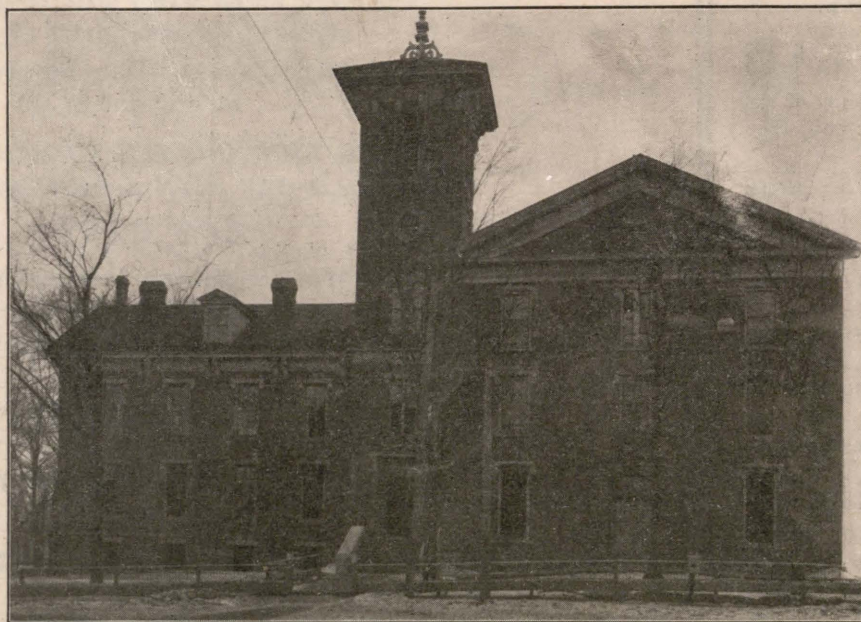

School opened Sept. 16, 1873, with an enrollment of times, was seldom seen on the hill, but it was now coming along by where the Altruria now stands loaded to the limit.

"It pays to advertise" and of course it wouldn't do for even a college president to become excited over the results of his own advertising and as he says he returned to the college building to compose himself and act as though he expected them all

Pres. Brown goes no further on that subject, but we may rest assured that he gave each one a smile, a familiar grasp of the hand, a slap on the shoulder, and in answer to all remarks that their money had not come replied with a wave of the hand, "That will be all right—sure—sure." we were nearly ready to wager that he called each one by name, and told them that he remembered their father when he was in the school. But this was the third term only and the wager would hardly be safe.

The president had no office, excepting a single room, used occasionally for that purpose. The fifteen rooms thirty-five students.—Miss Hutchison, daughter of the matron, presided at the organ and acted as chorister. The students formed the choir.

The school had four departments—preparatory, teachers, scientific and commercial.

Miss Baldwin, B. F. Perrine, M. E. Bogarte, and H. B. Brown formed the faculty. B. F. Perrine, owing to his having charge of the boarding and rooming department gave only a part of his time to teaching. Miss Hutchison gave what music lessons were called for.

Such, in brief, is the story of the foundation of Valparaiso University, and of its first term's work.

The second term came and went with the chief historical data being an enrollment of sixty-one and the addition of room 6.

"The third term was in the language of Pres. Brown," perhaps the most remarkable of all in the history of the school." Some advertising had been done. The only afternoon train, on the only railroad through Valparaiso had gone, and, no students having reached the hill, the president of the college started on his way down town. Upon reaching the spot where Commercial hall now stands, he saw, coming across a ravine around by the cemetery, what seemed to quote him literally, "a million students." The omnibus, in those were all ready occupied by second term students. The space from the College building to within two squares of the Court House was a Commons, and it was no small matter to find enough rooms for a "million" students, which, by the way, upon an actual count of noses, proved to be but fifty. Even that number seemed more than would a thousand, today. No place could be found to board them this side of Main and Morgan, rooms too, were found in that vicinity.

A very remarkable fact is it, that in spite of the inability to room and board the students near the college, everyone of the fifty students enrolled and remained throughout the term. During that term the enrollment reached 172. In order to accommodate all, and to keep every promise, the teachers taught, practically, day and night.

No summer term was held and the first year closed with the end of the third term.

Normal work was absolutely new in this section of the country and every student went away a walking advertisement of the school.

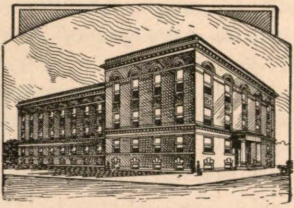

In another article will be told facts concerning the early history of the school even more interesting than those already related and the reader will have a deeper appreciation of Pres. Brown's statement—"I have lived a hundred years."

A conference was held with the trustees of the then Valparaiso Male and Female College, an institution controlled by the Methodist Church. The conference, from Valparaiso homeward turned the man, who since, has had his hundred thousand sit at his feet and learn of him—from Valparaiso turned the man who has since been an important factor in building it the most wonderful institution of learning in the world. And as he turned away he had very little intention of ever returning. However, through later correspondence an agreement was reached between the trustees and Mr. Brown, and by July 1st, 1873, he had decided to come here.

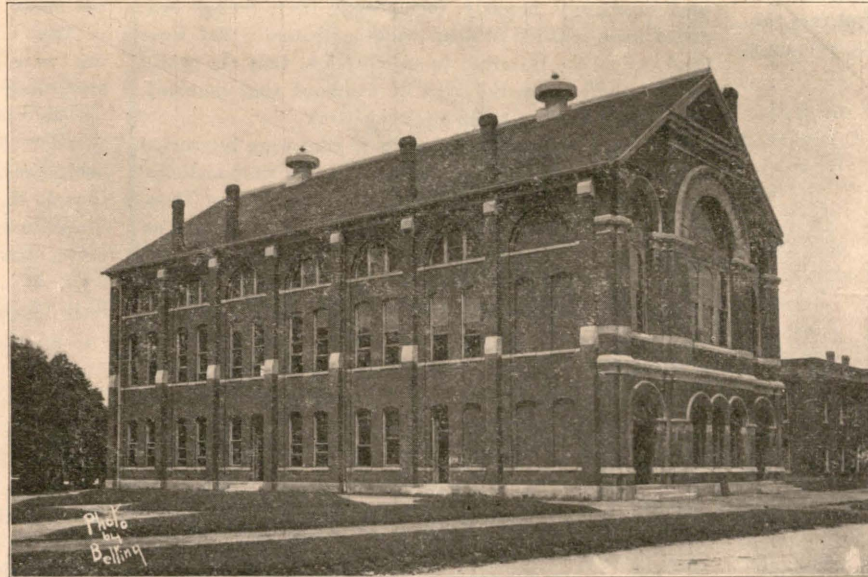

The college then consisted of the main part and the east wing of what is now known as Old College Building. The indebtedness then on the college was $10,000, and for that same consideration the title passed from the trustees to H. B. Brown.

General notice to Valparaiso and vicinity was given to the effect that college would open Sept. 16, 1873. Two weeks previous to this date, the president of the college arrived on the grounds. Weeds had grown up to the height of a man's head, and the first money spent for the good of the institution was paid to some boys for pulling the weeds in front of the college building. The grounds cleaned, the building itself was next overhauled. What is now known as room 5 and a little

CLASS AND SOCIETY NOTES AND HILL NEWS.

COMMERCIAL CLASS.

The Commercial held a meeting on Jan. 12. Important business matters were transacted. A banquet was ordered for February 19th and committees appointed. The committee on Class Yells have presented the following:

Razel'. Dazel'. Never Frazel?
Every stitch is wool?
That's the way we pull.
Who?
Commercials! Commercials!

Rattle Snakes and Firecrackers?
Zipp! Boom! Bah!
Commercials! Commercials!
Rah'. Rah'. Rah'.
It's no Lie and it's no Bluff,
Everybody says so, We're Hot Stuff Commercials!

The banquet promises to even surpass the one held last spring; which was acknowledged by all to have been one of the greatest successes of the year.

Brother Commercials! let us be up and doing and make this banquet the grandest banquet of this year.

Lay aside all cares; forget trial balances, and come to the festival, where all is joyous and beautiful. Don't forget your girl.

H. L. Hancock, Editor.

THE PHONOGRAPHERS.

Louis G. Brechler, Editor.

The Phonographers held a meeting on Wednesday evening, January 19. Several matters came before the meeting for consideration. Pres. Clow, of the Commercial Class gave a short address, inviting the Phonographers to join with them in giving their banquet. The class appreciated very much the invitation extended, but deemed it more satisfactory to hold a banquet of their own. The exact date for the banquet has not been set, but it will be, during the opening weeks of the new term.

It was voted to have a Class picture, which will be taken soon.

Louis Brechler was elected as yell-master. He handed in his resignation, but it was not accepted.

A program will be given by the society in Elocution Hall, on Saturday evening, February 19, at 8:15 o'clock. The committee in charge are Messrs. Pawloski and Edwards, and Misses Bost, Archibald and McElwain.

The program thus far arranged is as follows:

|-------------------------|------------|
| Miss Lottie Mitchell | Piano Solo |
| Miss Josephine Peterson | Vocal Solo |
| Miss Ruby Wilker | Reading |
| Miss Sarah Simpson | Vocal Solo |
| Mr. D. R. Raymond | Reading |

There will be several other interesting features and numbers introduced, which the committee is at present working upon.

ROBERT E. LEE ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION BY THE SOUTHERN LITERARY SOCIETY.

Saturday, January 22nd, 1910.

With every seat in Elocution Hall taken, and every available inch of floor space occupied by those who were even willing to stand to be present. With the Red and White of dear old Dixie streaming from every point of view and lending a color scheme that was in perfect harmony with the occasion. With an immense banner of our Union arranged most appropriately over the rostrum, the Sons and Daughters of the old Southland, attending here at the University, arrayed themselves to do honor and tribute to that immortal character of the South, who by his brilliancy as a man and his genius as a soldier, has commanded, from those dark days to the present time, the admiration of all the world. Then can it be helped that these generations of today, take advantage of every opportunity to immortalize the noble Lee. These, the posterity of that noble clan, who struggled so bravely, heroically, for a cause, that, though lost, called upon history to open wide her bounds, that their deeds might be inscribed in bold letters, that the world forever shall know the type of manhood that marched, fought and died in those ranks of Gray.

Nor was it alone the Southerners who were interested in the affair. No, but intermingled in the vast audience were vast numbers of the sons and daughters of those noble men who don the blue, shoulder the musket and march out to defend our flag of today, and stay the advancing columns of the gray clad warriors of the Confederacy in that memorial struggle of the days of '61. It would be useless to recall the incidents of those dark days of the war between the States, for, though there were many, the annals are so prominent on history's pages, that the youngest of students of today, can easily recall the happenings that occurred in mortal conflict.

Yet, it is with gratification, that one might look upon the posterity of these past generations and see them hand in hand, paying the honor and respect which is rightfully due to that noble leader of the Confederate Arms, whose stand, unto the last, was one series of heroic deeds and acts of bravery. And now, the sectional animosity which once so infected our country, and for so long did keep the ill feeling of the past alive, has, and for all time been swept away, and we now stand as man to man, 'neath one great flag, and as such, we shall be forever.

The Rev. Dr. Hill opened the program by an invocation which was most impressive and was followed by the Roessler Mandolin Club in its first number.

Miss Alma Cody then followed with her reading, "The Conquered Banner," by Father Ryan, the poet of the South. She was assisted by Miss Mitchell at the piano. Miss Cody has given many brilliant readings before this Society and others, but her efforts in the "Conquered Banner" eclipsed all previous readings. It could not have been improved upon.

Mr. Jones followed with Lowell's "Crisis" in a most creditable manner and Miss Lola Belle Erwin carried all back to Dixie in her number, "My Old Kentucky Home."

Will H. McLaran, the orator of the Hill, in his oration on Lee, brought out in a most vivid and impressive manner the brilliant qualities possessed by that great character of the South.

The Roessler Mandolin Club, with the assistance of the Dixie Quartette, brought the programme to a close in the imposing rendition of the Grand American Fantasia.

And thus was brought to a close an evening long to be remembered, and the Southern Literary Society takes this opportunity to thank its many friends and guests for their presence at the memorial programme, in honor of Robert E. Lee.

CIVIL ENGINEERING SOCIETY

S. Brownstein, Editor.

So vivid and masterful a picture of Hamlet, as the one presented by our worthy Dean, Prof. M. E. Bogarte, was never drawn, before our student body by any previous speaker.

The magnificent and charming appearance of Prof. M. E. Bogarte, the delivery, the intonation given to each pronounced word, and the very simplicity the way it was presented, keyed up every one in the audience to the very utmost, making them to live over gain Hamlet's struggles, sufferings and everything else that our noble Shakespearean character had to encounter.

The play, "Hamlet", was thrashed over and over again heretofore, but to the surprise of everyone present, the lecturer dug up, (using slang) something new in the origin and the history of development of the play, and this, with the spirit, and the very unexplainable something that the speaker used, went to make up the above described lecture.

Now I believe we can realize the sorrows of those, who were unable to hear the lecture, because of having every nok in the room jammed.

Can you afford to miss lectures like these? Certainly not! If so, then there is no question about your being present at the lecture to be given by Prof. J. H. Clowd., in R. H., on Friday, Feb. 4th.

As to business, the C. E. S. certainly had things first rate. Mr. S. H. Hoffman suggested an amendment, while Mr. S. Brownstein suggested a new article, both is to be considered at the next meeting.

INDIANA SOCIETY MEETING.

Indiana Society met Wednesday, January 26. Routine business was disposed of. Committee was appointed to arrange for a social evening in the near future and reports of the various committees were heard.

We have selected an emblem and button for the Society. Society colors are Brown and White. Our Buttons will be here in a few weeks.

All Hoosiers on the hill are requested to hand their name and home address to Mr. Mazingo, president, or Miss Gephart, secretary.

Our next meeting is on Tuesday evening, January 8, at 6:30 in Room D. the Society having decided to meet every other Tuesday evening.

We were very glad to have with us at our last meeting, Miss Shaw, of Vineyard Hall. We believe, she came by mistake, however.

SENIOR LAW NOTES.

The Eternal Question: "Does the Widow get dower?"

The two examinations held Saturday, one on Real Property and the other on Trusts and Mortgages, on account of the unparalleled dangers and hardships they presented, recalled to the mind the well-known passage of Virgil, wherein the two sea monsters, Scylla and Charybdis, are described. If you are not swallowed in the whirlpools of the one, you are dashed against the rocks of the other. Never before was the iron-clad ship of the Senior Class so exposed to the dangers of this mythical strait.

A united meeting of all Law students was held last week for the purpose of organizing the Base-ball Association in anticipation of the approaching season. Amid great enthusiasm and the heartiest good-feeling, the following officers were elected:

President, D. L. Giffin, '11; Vice-President, R. M. Laird, '10; Secretary, W. H. McLaran, '11; Treasurer, C. R. James, '11; Manager, P. C. Otwell, '10.

It was decided that the Captain should be chosen by the players themselves, and not by the general body. His election was therefore postponed until Spring.

The newly elected officers are men well qualified for their respective positions, and this fact, together with the interest, spirit and unity manifested at this, the first meeting, augurs well for a successful team in the field and a strong supporting body in the bleachers.

Prof. Weams.—"The heart beat of the dog is 90 per minute—of a man is 72 per minute. In fact we have many comparisons between dog and man. You know men are just the same as dogs." What did he mean.

BEWARE PHARMICS. Last week, at the time of the visit of the bunch from West Virginia, the Pharmics gave their yell in the chapel. Prof. Linton said: "They are learning that from the Medics." Pharmics, you must be careful, you will have your morals corrupted.—A Medic.

JUNIOR PHARMACY.

C. M. Harper, Editor.

The Junior Pharmacy class met Friday evening, Jan. 14, for the purpose of arranging for an entertainment in the near future, and also to elect an athletic manager who should arrange for a base-ball team, either among the juniors, or between them and the seniors.

J. T. Quinn was chosen manager.

They arranged to have the entertainment on Friday evening, February 11th. The following entertainment committee was appointed: Miss Gertie Hall, Miss Timmons, Ernest Parks, G. Granville Johnson, and C. M. Harper.

Several new members joined the class, most of whom had entered on the studies at the beginning of the second term.

On Friday evening, Jan. 28th, a joint meeting was held between the juniors and seniors, for the purpose of arranging for either a banquet or social, at the close of the term. A majority in both classes showed that they preferred a social, and committees were appointed to make preparations for a social the last week of the term. The exact date will be fixed later.

It is reported that our "Nice" man has established a wireless telegraph outfit in Loxlie Hall, and he may be seen sitting at the instrument almost any time, conversing with the inmates of No. 17 East Hall. We can now see what was troubling him some time ago, that caused him, in his sleep, to be continually mentioning No. 17 East, and No. 23, Vineyard Halls. 'Tis said that his room-mate lost many nights sleep listening to the mumbling strain of his voice as it always seemed to play with the same record. His room-mate will be pleased to rehearse it all to any caller at No. 5, Lockslee, anytime. For lack of time we cannot publish it all, but it begins with "Coo."

OUR LOGIC CLASS.

In Number Six, each day at Three
A jolly logic class we see,
Who want to think and learn to say
Everything in logic's way.

It's up to them to know what's what.—
To know the When-ness of the Ought.
The Is-ness of the Should—(So rare)—
And all the Why-ness of the Where.

Now Buley,—Logic will assume—
Has brightest head in all the room.
Oh tell us,—you with hair of gold—
All apples in the barrel told—

"If some were good and some were bad"—
How many do you think we had?
And Having, why did we not have?
And Having Not, why did we have?

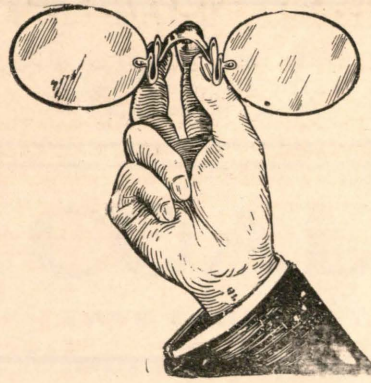

Then classic Bogarte tells the class,
When Classic-class will meet enmasse.
In French he's gay—could write an ode,
With swing and meter a la mode.

And Mead, you'll make your mark some day,
Tho far away from French Cafe.
And Brownstein, who sits up in front,
Is wise on more than one bright stunt.

With logicalest logic-light
A young logican plays it right,
And sits by her with hat of blue—
He'll prove his love by logic true.

There's "Edna," "Emma," "Dema" too,
And others, jolly happy crew.
Now put it down and mark it right,
Our logic class is pretty bright!

If "Logic, Logic is," we claim;
And Logic good, is good—"Tis plain—
That we "are good" for Logic good,—
And good we'd be if good we could.

THE GOVERNOR AND HIS STAFF.

The Governor of W. Va., the State Supt. of Public Inst., the Pres. of the State University, three members of the board of regents, and a number of others visited Valparaiso University last week, on a tour of inspection of Colleges and Universities.

They certainly were a jolly crowd and we made 'em go the limit. Their impression of Valparaiso was, judging from their broad statements, a most agreeable one.

How proud Prof. Brown and Prof. Kinsey may well be of such endorsements from such a source.

It must have been quite a change to drop down from the University of $23,000,000 endowment, to the University built on effort and merit and to find the second largest institution in the land, to have been built up on business principles and asking no legislature for handouts.

Possibly Mr. Brown looked upon the overflowing auditorium and remembered his start of thirty-eight years ago, with 35 students.

He that sheweth himself diligent shall sit before the Governor.

Some Things They Said About Us.

"So far as I know, Valparaiso University is the only representative of the American Idea of a Liberal Education."

"For singleness of purpose, I do not think that the student body here, can be duplicated anywhere in the world."

"I have a new classification for universities.

- I. State Universities.
- II. Endowed Universities.
- III. Denominational Universities.
- IV. Valparaiso University."

A Few of Their Jokes.

"In Ireland they hang 'em like a dog.— In Ameriky they set 'em down in a chair and kill 'em with elocution."

A maid was admonished that whenever she spoke to the Aristocratic visitor on tap she was to speak politely—say "Your Grace," says the mistress.

When the visitor came down stairs he spied the maid and said well my girl you look sweet enough to ~~be~~ he placed her hands complacently and said: "The Lord make us truly thankful for what we are about to receive."

A lad was asked why ladies always kissed when they met and she answered: "We believe in the 'Golden Rule'—Do unto others as ye would that men should do unto you."

Mr. Edmund Enright, of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, Washington, D. C., was a visitor at the University, January 25, 1910, and the guest of Mr. George W. Vilain, Law, '11, at Stiles Hall.

Mr. Enright is in charge of Government Philippine students in the various universities and colleges in the United States and expressed a very high regard of the work being accomplished at Valparaiso. He has one private Philippine student here, a Mr. Francisco Senoren of Gigagnit, Surigao, Philippine Islands. Mr. Enright left for Notre Dame University, South Bend, Indiana, the same day.

At a meeting in the auditorium, Sunday, $300 was raised from the student body to pay off the debt on the Y. M. C. A.

Several hundred was raised from other sources—the main donors being the professors, the University and Prof. Kinsey.

(Prof. Weems in Botany class, just as a young lady had finished reciting.) What did she say Granville? (Johnson, who had been whispering across the aisle.) Why, she said that— (Prof.) I don't mean the one across the aisle.

McAtee is very popular. It seems that all Missouri girls try to meet him.

Rowe is taking great interest in the Pennsylvania society.

Ernest Parks is a good story teller with the phar-mics. The stories are all true, however and occurred "down home."

Meets All Trains Day or Night

August Nachant, Com., '09, who left in May for Alaska, recently made Valpo a short visit. He informs us that he changed his mind as to the Alaskan trip and upon reaching Seattle, Wash., spent a month at the Exposition and after traveling another month through California and Nevada landed in Texas and went in to the Hotel business. A couple of weeks ago he sold the hotel and bought an orange farm. Mr. Nachant has spent five years in Alaska, still has the Alaskan fever and plans to spend next summer there.

During Nachant's travels since May he has met with a large number of old Valpo folks among whom are Carter, Com., '09, who is book-keeping in Seattle; Frank Barlow, Com., '09, book-keeper, American Nat'l Bank, Houston, Tex.; Rush Tuttle, Pharmic, '08, drug clerk, 610 Main St., Houston, Tex.

Mr. Nachant says he met a score or more not mentioned in this article and never a one but wished himself back in Valpo.
