Spring 4-24-2013

Using Public Relations Analysis to Study the Role of Perception of a Student Organization (OPR)

Shiho Suzuki
Valparaiso University, shiho.suzuki@valpo.edu

Nour Ulayyet
Valparaiso University

Lisa Borosh
Valparaiso University

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholar.valpo.edu/cus

Part of the Communication Commons

---

Recommended Citation

Suzuki, Shiho; Ulayyet, Nour; and Borosh, Lisa, "Using Public Relations Analysis to Study the Role of Perception of a Student Organization (OPR)" (2013). Symposium on Undergraduate Research and Creative Expression (SOURCE). 220.

https://scholar.valpo.edu/cus/220

This Oral Presentation is brought to you for free and open access by the Office of Sponsored and Undergraduate Research at ValpoScholar. It has been accepted for inclusion in Symposium on Undergraduate Research and Creative Expression (SOURCE) by an authorized administrator of ValpoScholar. For more information, please contact a ValpoScholar staff member at scholar@valpo.edu.
Using Public Relations Analysis to Study the Role of Perception of a Student Organization (OPR)

Shiho Suzuki, Nour Ulayyet, Lisa Borosh

Departmental Affiliation: Communication
College of Arts and Sciences

Organization-public relationship (OPR) is a central focus for those working in public relations. The literature indicates that OPR is the key indicator of the effectiveness for an organization. To apply this knowledge to a student organization on campus seemed particularly important when an organization has an international focus, especially for undergraduates. Thus, the research on the VISA student organization with key student publics served as the primary means for gaining insight into the perceptions or the perceived image of an internal organization.

Information about the Authors:
Shiho Suzuki is a public relations major who is from Japan. She is interested in working in PR in the U.S. after graduation this May. Lisa Borosh is a student in public relations with a variety of interests in PR. She is currently a member of PRSSA. Nour Ulayyet, from Syria, is an active public relations practitioner in the area of fundraising. Nour completed a campaign recently for fundraising and is proud of its success. Her children participate in her current campaigns.

Faculty Sponsor: Dr. Bonita Neff

Student Contact: shiho.suzuki@valpo.edu